resentations to the court, made for the corrupt consideration that the Snyders were the best Republican workers in the Eighth ward. Logically the last acquittal, like the first, was secured by a prostitution of the machinery of justice to serve the exigencies of the Republican party. But as all the parties implicated, as well as the judges, belong to that party, the court is unanimous-for once-that it need take no cognizance of the imposition practiced upon it and the disgrace attaching to it .-EDS. There are a large number of useful and fancy articles on sale and for chance here, among the latter being a very handsome cut glass inkstand, a pretty clock, a box of fine Havana cigars, silver cake basket, etc. An elegant begonia occupies a central position of the table, and adds materially to its appearance. There are for chance here a rocking chair and a doll baby, a pig and a ten-dollar gold piece. To-morrow evening, when admission to the festival will be free, there will be a "package auction" at this table, when doubtless there will be plenty | ner. of amusement for bidders and spectators. Miss Altick is in chief command, and her assistants are Misses Keller, Lant, Wentz, Wade, Bennawit, Harberger, Mazie Malone, Coyle and O'Neill.

At the south-east corner of the room is the table where big plates of ripe red strawberries are served by the accomodating ladies in charge at the low price of ten cents. The luscious fruit is temptingly displayed, and the appearance of the table is enchanced by several bouquets with which it is decorated. An elegant gold-band china tea-set is to be chanced off here. Miss Mary Dougherty is in charge and her assistants are the Misses Sullivan, Holland, Todd, McDivitt and Quinn.

The confectionery table along the south wall is gorgeons in its patriotic panoply of red, white and blue, and the arches creeted above it are handsomely trimmed with tarlatan. Several sweetly-singing canaries carol forth their invitations to the visitor, whose mouth is fairly made to under which the table groans. Contested Election.

By advertisement in the New Era yesterday Mr. J. C. Swope, a member of the investigating committee of the late board of return judges of the primary election, gives notice to the committee to reassemble at the orphans court room in this city on Saturday, the 12th day of June, when evidence will be presented showing that frauds were perpetrated at the late primury, of sufficient magnitude to change the result of the nomination of the district attorney and two assemblymen. This is a move in the interest of A. J. Eberly

The Davis and Snader men ridicule the move and say there is absolutely nothing in it. That the committee of which Mr. Swope was a member made their report to the return judges : that the report was received, the committee discharged and the board adjourned sine die; that the committee is dead, and cannot be resurrected: that the rules of the party warrant no such disorganizing proceeding as Mr. Swope suggests, and that a majority of the committee will refuse to pay any attention to

DRIVING ACCIDENT.

And Probably a Law Suit. On Wednesday evening while driving near Wheatland, the two-horse phaeton of John S. Rohrer, ran into the two-horse phaeton of George D. Sprecher, which was in charge of Wm. Frankford, coachman, and in which were seated Mrs. Sprecher, Miss Lillie Sprecher and Miss Lewis, a sister of Mrs. Sprecher. The Sprecher phaeton was overturned, and the occupants might have been seriously injured had not the pole broken and the traces become loose, allowing the horses to get away from the wrecked vehicle.

Mr. Sprecher's driver alleges that the fault of the accident lies altogether with lessly, and Mr. Rohrer alleges that he was driving with all due care. Mr. Sprecher sent a note to Mr. Rohrer relative to the affair, and this morning Mr. Rohrer called on him accompanied by legal counsel. Mr. Sprecher was much exasperated and warm words followed which will probably result Scared at the Cars. This forenoon about half-past 11 o'clock mustang horse belonging to Harry Witmer and attached to a trotting buggy, in which Mr. Witmer and Frederick Sener, were taking a drive, took fright at the cars at the Pennsylvania railroad depot, commenced kicking, and ran upon the pavement in front of the "five cent store" on North Queen street. Here the horse ran against the table on which the cheap goods are displayed, upset it, and scattered the wares in all directions, and falling upon the pavement broke the shafts of the buggy and tore the harness, but did not do any other serious damage. Mr. Sener jumped from the wagon before the crash came, and Mr. Witmer stuck to it. Neither was hurt.

vote of 27 to 17, two not voting. The Convention. While the interest in the convention and s business continues, there is a visible abatement of the excitement this morning. At 101 there were few delegates in their eats, and the galleries were not half filled. Spectators, however, are still pouring in and as the weather is cool, there is no doubt that another hour will see the house crammed to its utmost capacity. A Hot Discussion In the discussion of Conkling's motion to exclude the West Virginia dissenters. Mr. Hale, of W. Va., who voted "aye, defended the rights of his colleague to vote as he saw fit [applause]; to utter his sentiments as an individual delegate. Mr. Brandagee, of Conn., said question was not one of free speech; no the merits. nan here will seek to hinder any delegate's free speech; it was only a question as to what any man would do for the support of Republican principles. He continued at considerable length and was greeted with hisses A Fierce Thrust at Conkling. Mr. McCormick, of West Virginia, avowed himself one of the dissentants: not because he did not expect to support | Cameron's support of the right the nominee of this convention, for he did of individual district representation intend to do that no matter who he shou'd at the convention of 1876, under precisely be. He was as good a Democrat as the similar circumstances and a similar call for gentleman from New York and whereas a national convention. They cite the form the latter made only one speech for the of a call of the convention in 1858 as eviconvention, he (McCormick) made one publican party to establish the principle of hundred. [Great applause and cheers.] He district representation. opposed the resolution only because it declares that men are unfit to sit in the con- dents in the party down to date.

A Colored Brother Wants to Know Young (Tenn.), colored, supported a party, they should be helping to choose the nominee of the Republican party; if it was a mere question of personal independtake care of itself.

Garfield's Grave Apprehension Garfield (Ohio) expressed his fear that he convention was about to commit a grave error. He would state the case : every delegate save three had voted for the resolution, and the three gentlemen who had voted against it had risen in their places and stated that they had expected and intended to support the nomination of he convention; but, that it was not, in their judgment, a wise thing at this time to pass the resolution which all the other delegates voted for. Were they to be dishised because they thou of "no," "no.") That was the question Was every delegate to have his Republicanism inquired into before he was allowed to vote? Delegates were responsible for their votes, not to the convention but to falling barometer, variable winds, warmer their constituents. [Cheers.] He himself would never in any convention vote against his judgment. He regretted that the gentleman from West Virginia had thought it best to break the harmony of the convention bis residence, the harmony of the convention by their dissent; did not know these gentlemen nor their affiliations, nor their relations to the candidates. If this convention expelled these men, the convention would have to purge itself at the end of every vote, and inquire how many delegates who had voted "no" should go out. He trusted the gentleman from New York would withdraw his resolution and let the convention proceed with business.

Pixley (Cal.) moved to lay the resolution on the table. [Applause.]

Conkling demanded a call of the roll. [Hisses, long and furious.]
The call of the roll was ordered

Conkling inquired whether the three gentleman from West Virginia did say that they would vote for the nominee of this convention.

The chair said it was not his province to answer the question.

Conkling said he would not press his resolution if his question was answered in the affirmative, and finally he withdrew the resolution as he said there seemed to be some doubt. [Applause and hisses.]

Sewell (N. J.), moved that the committee an credentials now report ; adopted. The chair called the galleries to order for disturbing the convention, and said if there was any more hissing he would clear that part from whence it came.

The chairman of the credentials committee not being in the house, on motion of Sewell the committee on rules was ordered to report, with the understanding that no action be taken upon their recommendations until after the report of the committee on credentials and action taken

Bruce in the Chair. The chair called Senator Bruce, of Mississippi, one of the vice presidents, temporarily to the chair. As Bruce came forward he was received with applause. Garfield, from the committee, reported the rules commended for the government of the convention. The rules were read by the secretary. The one which forbids any unit rule was received with applause.

Garfield said he did not understand that the rules were now up for discussion but only for information. The only changes from 1876 were verbal merely, or effected their rearrangement in a more convenient order, except that the committee had added to what was now numbered as rule 8, a provision clearly and explicitly embodying the uniform precedents of all previous Republican conventions to the manner of taking the vote of states that are divided. Hoar resumed the chair. Sharpe (N. Y.) presented a minority report of the committee on rules, signed by the delegates on that committee from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri, Kentucky, New York, Tennessee, Virginia, Illinois and Colorado, recommending the adoption of Rule 6 of the convention of 1876, in the same language as in 1876, as follows: "In the record of the votes by states the vote of each state, territory, and the District of Columbia, shall be announced by chairman, and in case the vote of any state. territory, or the District of Columbia. shall be divided, the chairman shall announce the number of votes east for any any candidate or for or against any propo sition." The minority express belief that the addition made by the majority of the committee is unwise, that it tends to invite dissension which might not otherwise be forced, that, as a protection of the essary, and that it gratuitously and in advance casts an imputation on the chairn en of respective delegations. Action on the report of the committee on rules, and the views of the minority was withheld for the present.

The Platform. The committee on resolutions have no reported but have agreed on their work The platform rehearses the great benefits of Republican rule to the country; it has resolved solidity to national finances, lifted the credit of the country; has en sured prosperity of the future. It advocates popular education, adherence to the constitution, prohibition of the use of public funds for sectarian schools, favors the protection of American labor, commerce and ndustries, denounces polygamy, renews the obligations of the country to the Union soldiers, opposes unlimited Chinese immigration and suggests congressional modifica ion of existing treaties to remedy the evil, commends Hayes's administration; airaigns the Democratic party and holds it to be the duty of the Republicans to harmonize the whole country.

After about an hom's delay, waiting for he committee on credentials, the convention again came to order at 1 p. m. Conger (Mich.) presented the report, apologizing for the length of time they had been compelled to detain the convention, and explaining the necessity. They had been continuously and laborousengaged in the duties ever they were appointed the exception of a recess of three or four hours. The numerous questions before them had been discussed with candor and frankness, and settled without dispute in the committee is to their action. the no matter how much they differed as to

The recommendations of the committee respecting contests are given above. In addition thereto the committee reported that the final decision of many of the contests depends upon the adoption by the convention of the principle of congressional district representation. This the committee believe to be sound. [Applause.] The report cites Hon, J. Don ominee of the last national Republican dence that it was the purpo e of the Re-

If a state convention can by bare majority overrule the will of ence let them keep it to themselves, but the people fairly expressed in the selection let them leave the Republican party to of district delegates it might as well appoint at once all delegates. [Great applause]. Nominations made though such misrepresentations were not likely to be ratified by the people. It was the duty of the convention to disapprove emphatically all attempts to override high moral customs of party. (Applause.) Clayton (Ark.) presented the minority report. It differs with the report of the majority as to the application of the principle of district representation. The recom-
